Project Specs

- The project we are doing is a fundraiser for a political change. The targeted audience for the fundraiser will be the public. We will inform the audience by using advertisements on social media. This will allow us to keep the cost of creating the fundraiser to be lower and will also allow us to advertise to a lot of people. We aim to produce a website that will allow donors to donate to the fundraiser and allow them to register with their personal details. We will also create a database to insert details of the donors and the fund starters, the database will also contain how much each donor has donated. To connect the database and the website we will also create an API which will allow us to have an interaction between the website and database.

Ethical issues

- There are many ethical issues when it comes to fundraising for political change. An important ethical issue is privacy confidentiality, this is huge due to the fact that people would only donate if the site is trustworthy and safe to use. Information disclosure is a main concern as this would result in people not wanting to help raise funds as the fundraisers will not have gained their trust, but this issue can easily be overcome since the organisation will need to increase their security, policies and guidelines in order to make them trustworthy and meet customer satisfaction.

Professional issues

- The professional issues of fundraising for political change are policies and guidelines. This is because an organisation will create certain policies in order to keep it professional and to avoid any legal issues. This is because these policies and guidelines will need to be updated regularly in order to stay up to date. This would allow the organisation to build confidence and confidentiality, professionalism and to become successful.

Professional
Issues

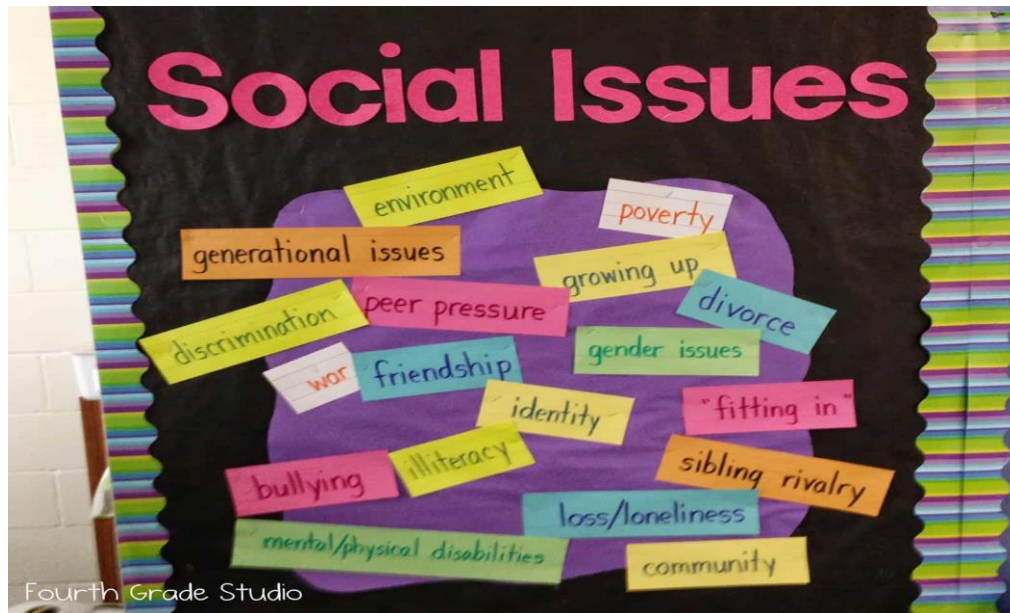

Legal issues

- The legal issues of fundraising for political change are employment. We need to consider all applicants equally regardless of their background so they all have a fair chance when competing for a job. Another legal issue to consider is human rights. This is a very important issue to consider as it strongly correlates to political change. Everybody in the world deserves to have basic human rights so we are protected from abuse or discrimination. Rights such as food, water, clean sanitation and adequate housing are essential in order to maintain a good living standard.

Social issues

- The social issues of fundraising for political change are people of different cultures and religions not getting along with each other in the workplace. This causes many problems as it can distract people from working. Also, it may even lead to arguing amongst the workers. If everybody in the workplace gets along with each other regardless of their cultural or religious background then there will be less issues and there will also be more peace amongst workers.

Risks

- The following risks we will run into for example when we are utilising a Gantt chart is that we don't meet the goals we have set in the time frame which could cause confusion and un-organisation. The economic aspects of a fundraiser for political aspects is that we are to ensure that everything is well regulated and doesn't have any outstanding economical problems.
